TO THE TEACHER

See that the students fully understand how to spell by sound; then have them learn the words and vowel characters so thoroughly that they cannot in any way confuse them.

See that they thoroughly understand each rule before writing words developed thereby.

As the combination of vowels with consonant strokes are fully illustrated in Lesson Eight, have the student study every detail of such combination until he can form them accurately and rapidly, before leaving that lesson.

You think you can not read this shorthand so do not try,
for you might be mistaken

There are no wordsigns in the system and the following is the style of contraction used in Clark's Tangible Shorthand.

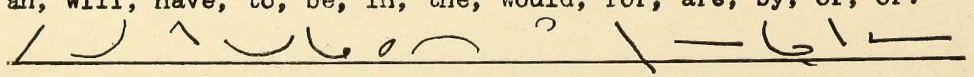
and wood
an, will, have, to, be, in, the, would, for, are, by, of, or.



As "the vowel sounds are the soul of language", they must be thoroughly committed inorder to spell by sound: as, th aw tuh not tee aich owe you gee aich tee, for thought.

Below are the thirteen vowel's sounds expressed in four different ways---as they sound in the words of the sentence, as their names are spelled, by diacritical marks and by shorthand outlines.

The difference between a and say or a and ace in shorthand is produced by shading or making the outline blacker, that is, by writing with a heavier stroke: as, a(o) shaded (o) for say or ace"o".

Change all the vowels that way and produce these words:

Say, ace, is, see, sea, sigh, ice, eyes, use, Sioux, sue, us, as, saw, so, owes Practice for accuracy.

This sign" + " means plus and this," = " means equals: thus, as "w" has the sound of "o͞o" or "o͡o"and"⌒or ⊃ = oo in shorthand, therefore, (as o͞o or o͞o + ĕ = wĕ or wĕh, (so ⌒ or ⊃ + o = ⌒ or ⊖ .

In this way, join the o͞o(⌒) or o͡o(⊃) to all other vowel characters to record the w joined to all other vowel characters: as, wĕ way wĭ wē wŏ wī wōo wo͡o wŭ wă wau wōe wow woi. o͞ + a͞ = away.

Practice for accuracy and familiarity.

This sign "✚" means plus and this,"=" means equals: Thus, as "y" has the sound of $\bar{e}$ and . = $\bar{e}$ in shorthand, so (as $\bar{e}$ ✚ $\bar{a}$ = yea
(so . ✚ o = ⌀

In this way, join the $\bar{e}$(.) dot to all other vowel characters to record the y joined to all other characters, as follows:

Yĕ yea yĭ yē yŏ yī yo͞o yo͝o yŭ yă yau yō yow yoi. ŏ ✚ ē ✚ ō ✚ ā = (Iowa(⌀)

Practice for accuracy and familiarity.

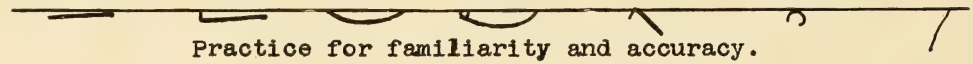
By shading or writing any consonant character blacker, that is,bearing heavier on the pen or pencil while writing it will add to that stroke t th or d: thus,"of" shaded records "of th.

Any character written below the line will express the following p or b: thus,"to" written below the line records "to be".

EXAMPLES.

And th,of th,fr th,to th,th to,it 'd,or t,or th.are th,will be,

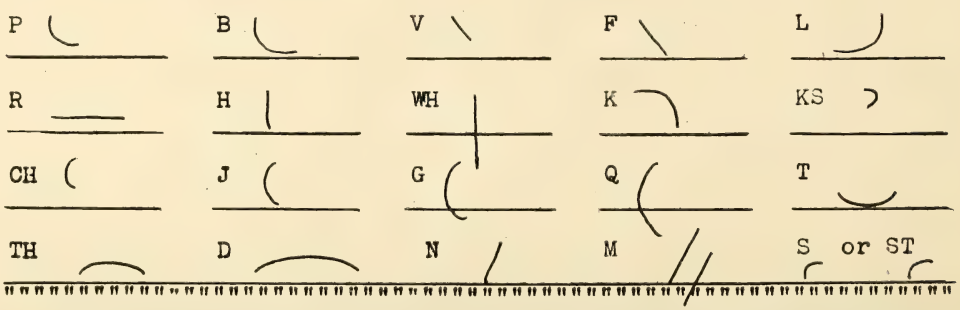
are to be,or to be,to be the,it 'd be,have t be,would be,and be.



Practice for familiarity and accuracy.

CONSONANTS OF SINGLE SOUNDS.

The consonants are composed of four length strokes and a few very short ticks, therefore, great care must be used in recording them. All downward strokes commence 1/2 way between ruled lines and all upward strokes commence at base line. Parallel strokes may be written any place but the length of all must be exact.

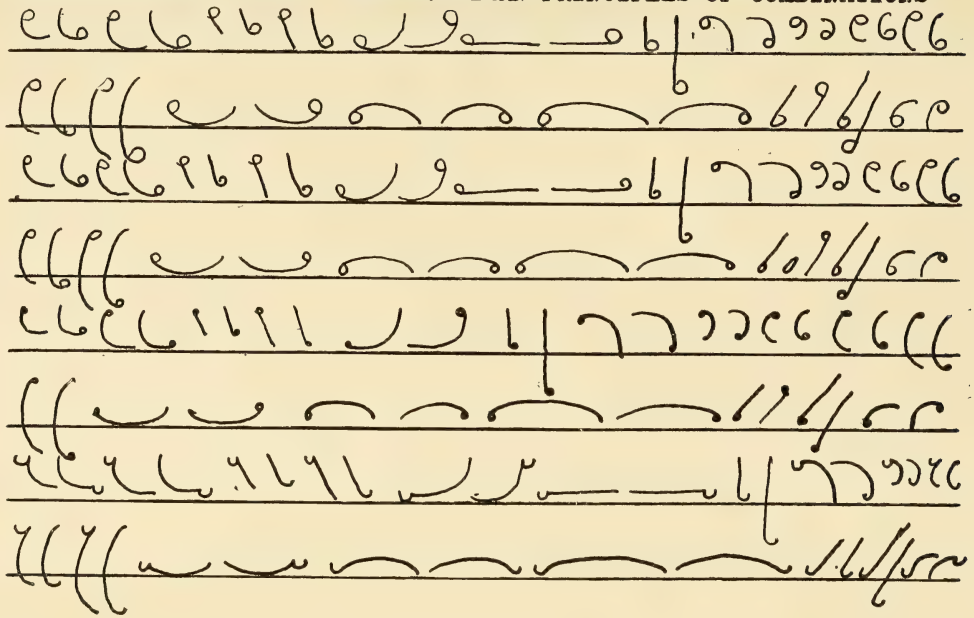


All vowels must be joined to the consonant characters with as sharp an angle as possible or a complete blending without deforming the outline of either by rappid writing.

The short e and the long a are generally written the same way unless danger of confusion in which case the short e retains its own form.

Vowels joined to consonant strokes.

PRACTICE FOR ACCURACY AND TO LEARN PRINCIPLES OF COMBINATIONS



LESSON EIGHT

The following words are recorded with exactly the same outlines that are used in lesson eight, with this exception, that all words beginning with the sound of s followed by a vowel have that s recorded by shading the vowel, and all vowels in the body or at the end of a word, followed by s, sh or tion sounds, are shaded to record these sounds. Ex. Weep is changed to sweep , upe is changed to soup , or Poe is changed to pose or potion .

In case two words, not foreign to each other, of the same part of speech would be recorded with the same outline, the underscored letter should be recorded with its appropriate stroke.

Practice for accuracy and to learn the principle.

Sip, seep, sop, scup, sup, soap, pays, pace, patient (shade the p also), peas, pease, piece, sob, base, bays, abiss, bees, bosh, buys, abuse, boose, bush, buss, buzz, bass, boss, bows, beaux, boughs, boys, pa's, pies, pews, push, puss, pass, passion, pause, pose, position, possession.
vase, ovation, vice, vise, views, vows, phase, face, fish, fees, fashion, foes, save, safe, seive, sift, soft, sufficient, sell, sail, sill, silly (two " . The following are consonant characters ending with the "r" sound to which the vowels and other consonant characters are joined the same as illustrated in lesson eight. Vowels written at the end of these strokes may be read between or after the two consonant sounds: as, fire \ and fry \ would have the same outline unles such words prove to be of the same part of speech. In such cases, a stroke should be used for the underscored letter.

Practice for accuracy and to learn the strokes and principles.

The vowels are joined to these strokes the same way they are to those in lesson eight. Where these strokes do not apply to the following words the following rules will.

The following k,g,ch or j sounds can be expressed by crossing any outline from a circle or loop: as, pay is changed to page or peg ; pane is changed to paying or pass is changed to passing .

Where the nk or ng strokes are used after any consonant stroke, the vowels between them need not be recorded: as, long or language

Extensive phrasing may safely be done with very brief outlines by applying the various principles to the various strokes and crouding out the sounds you naturally croud out in speech:as, I've,you'll,we'd,'a k'd,'f I'd,'f I'll,'f I k'd; in rpli t .

Study these principles and make as many phrases as possible.

In answer to, replying to,I am in receipt of your,very truly.

THESE PHRASES ARE GIVEN TO TEACH THE PRINCIPLES OF PHRASING.

CONCLUDING SUGGESTIONS.

The sounds of sh'r, sh, and sh'l following a consonant sound may be expressed by recording the, hr, h, and hl strokes at the end of such consonant stroke; as, mr and hl strokes would record the word, martial.

The tf–v, tfl–vl, tfr–vr, and tfk–fj–fg expressions at the end of a word may be recorded with the v, f, fl–vl, fr, vr, or fk–g–j strokes.

The word "which" may be recorded with other words by crossing their outlines to or from the short i circle for the following "ch" sound: as "which of" ..... or "for which" .....
